Loup Power District Issues Revised Study Plan

Loup Power District has reached another milestone in the multi-year process of applying for a new federal license for Loup Power District's Hydroelectric Project. On July 27, 2009, the District issued its Revised Study Plan which outlines issues to be studied and how those studies will be conducted.

Throughout the spring and early summer, Loup Power District met with interested agencies and stakeholders to discuss environmental issues related to relicensing of the Project. The Revised Study Plan is the product of those meetings and includes the strategies to collect the necessary information for evaluation of a new project license.
